Editors’ Note

We are very pleased to be able to announce a new editorial team for Global Social Policy (GSP). From this issue onwards, the team will be comprised of Alexandra Kaasch as lead editor, supported by four co-editors: Tuba I. Agartan (Providence College, USA), Sarah Cook (University of New South Wales, Sydney, Australia), Nicola Piper (University of Sydney, Australia, and Queen Mary University of London, UK) and Marianne S. Ulriksen (DaWS – Danish Centre for Welfare Studies, and University of Southern Denmark, Denmark). With regard to our three new co-editors: Tuba’s research is at the interface of social policy and sociology with a focus on comparative health policy, health professions, global health and governance. Sarah is Emeritus Director of UNRISD and of UNICEF’s Innocenti Research Centre; she is a China specialist, working on issues of social policy, labour markets, gender and development. Marianne’s area of expertise is comparative welfare studies in the context of Africa.

Furthermore, the editor of the GSP Digest has also changed. From this issue onwards, Amanda Shriwise from, and supported by, the University of Bremen is responsible for updating us with recent events in the many fields of global social policy. Amanda holds a DPhil from Oxford University and has previously worked at the US Department of Health and Human Services and as a consultant for the World Health Organization.

We are excited to be working together and to find new ways to further improve the quality and the outreach of our journal in the years to come.