

CALL FOR PAPERS

TOURISM ECONOMICS

Special Issue on “Tourism Demand: Emerging Theoretical and Empirical Issues”

Guest Editors

Frank W. Agbola, Australia frank.agbola@newcastle.edu.au

Tarik Dogru tdogru@bu.edu, Ulrich Gunter ulrich.gunter@modul.ac.at

Tourism Economics, published bimonthly from SAGE, is an international peer-reviewed journal that publishes the latest, quality research that covers the business aspects of tourism in the wider context. Tourism Economics is SSCI-indexed, with an impact factor of 0.826 in 2016.

Purpose

This special issue aims to explore emerging theoretical and empirical issues in tourism demand. Understanding the drivers of tourism demand is critical for developing strategies to meeting growing and volatile tourism demand.

Understanding factors influencing tourism demand is critical for implementing effective tourism and hospitality related policies for achieving efficiency in the tourism and hospitality industry. In an ever-changing global economy, characterized by increasing interconnectedness of people and places, the widespread global changes have made the understanding of the factors influencing tourism demand more challenging and even more critical. These changes have led to advances in the theoretical and empirical analysis of tourism demand research. This special issue aims to provide a platform to explore these theoretical and empirical debates relating to tourism demand by inviting submissions on all aspects of tourism demand. Suggested topics include, but are not limited to the following:

- Modelling domestic tourism demand,
- Modelling outbound tourism demand,

- Modelling tourism demand of the sharing economy,
- Bilateral visa agreements and international tourism demand,
- Conceptualization and operationalization of economic and non-economic factors impacting tourism demand,
- Modelling tourism demand in the presence of dynamic (spatial) factors,
- Modelling tourism demand in the presence of high-frequency explanatory variables, web-based indicators and seasonality,
- Climate change and tourism demand,
- Modelling the impact of wars, conflicts, and terrorism on tourism demand,
- Comparative analysis of tourism demand in developed, emerging, and less developed countries.

Submission Guidelines

Papers submitted must not have been published, accepted for publication, or be under review for publication elsewhere. Manuscripts should be prepared according to the journal's "Submission Guidelines" (<https://uk.sagepub.com/en-gb/eur/tourism-economics/journal202562#submission-guidelines>).

Prospective authors are strongly encouraged to contact the guest editors regarding potential topics of interest or any questions/suggestions regarding the special issue. One-page abstracts can be submitted directly to the guest editors via email by July 15, 2018, at the following addresses: Frank W. Agbola, Newcastle Business School, University of Newcastle, Australia. Email: frank.agbola@newcastle.edu.au. Include in the subject of the email: Tourism Economics – Special Issue on Tourism Demand

The guest editors will review the abstracts, and those that make a significant contribution and fit the theme of the special issue will be invited for full paper submission. Full papers should be submitted before December 15, 2018, through the journal's online system (<https://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/teu>). Please select the correct special issue to submit to: "Tourism Demand: Emerging Theoretical and Empirical Issues". All papers will be peer-reviewed as per the guidelines of Tourism Economics before consideration for inclusion in the special issue.

Timeline

Abstract Submission:	July 15, 2018
Abstract Decision:	August 15, 2018
Full Paper Submission:	December 15, 2018
Revision and Decision:	March - April 2019