CALL FOR PAPERS

Behavioral Disorders

Editors:

Bryan G. Cook, University of Hawaii at Manoa
Daniel M. Maggin, University of Illinois at Chicago

Papers published in Behavioral Disorders (BD) are reports of original investigations, reviews of research, and theoretical papers related to the education of students with emotional and behavioral disorders (EBD) and intensive behavioral needs. Both quantitative and qualitative studies are considered appropriate. Quantitative studies may use within- or between-subject designs. Research, program evaluation reports, and position papers are evaluated for their social significance. Socially significant experimental investigations may be basic or applied in nature, although BD has a tradition of publishing applied research, especially studies related to assessment of and intervention with children and youth with emotional and behavioral disorders. Manuscripts that explore socially significant and innovative developments in the field related to theory, practice, policy, research, or translation of research to practice – including “position statements” – will be considered for the Forum section of the journal. In addition, we will accept Brief reports of research that will allow researchers to submit studies (e.g., pilot studies) that possess particular interest to the field but may lack the methodological rigor (e.g., small sample size) to meet the standard of a regular research article. BD is an official division journal of the Council for Children with Behavioral Disorders (CCBD).
