

CALL FOR PAPERS

Journal of Geriatric Psychiatry and Neurology
presents the

Jeffrey L. Cummings Award

JGPN, a journal dedicated to advancing knowledge and practice in the psychiatric and neurological care of older adults, is pleased to announce a new competition in honor of our Associate Editor Jeffrey L. Cummings.

The best original manuscript submitted by a Geriatric Psychiatry, Neuropsychiatry or Neuropsychology Fellow currently in fellowship training or within one year of completion will be chosen for the award, which includes a free one-year digital subscription to the journal, promotion of the article on our JGPN homepage, and a 90-day free-access link to the article the author can share.

JGPN will publish the chosen review or research report in the same issue as a special invited article by Dr. Cummings in which he discusses a widely used research tool he developed, the Neuropsychiatric Inventory (NPI).
