

SAGE Announces Call for New Editor of the Journal of Hispanic Higher Education

SAGE announces the search for a new Editor of the Journal of Hispanic Higher Education. This peer-reviewed, quarterly, and international publication has been servicing the field of multiculturalism and education in pursuit of high impact content since its establishment in 2002.

Transition to the new Editorial leadership would commence on July 1, 2023.

The Journal of Hispanic Higher Education is an educational administration journal with cross-over into Latino culture studies as well as management, marketing, political science, and, of course, higher education. Topics will include: corporate culture at Hispanic-Serving Institutions; financial aid and graduation rates; retention strategies at Hispanic-Serving secondary institutions; Hispanic involvement in college and university athletics; Hispanic graduation rates among disciplines; organization development in Hispanic-serving institutions; curricular issues; demographic shifts and student government; technology and family values; teaching strategies; retention models; recruiting models; faculty development.

CiteScore: 3.4 | SCImago Journal Rank: 1.154

Applicants should send a letter of interest with an attached copy of their CV to Danielle Bath, Publishing Editor, at danielle.bath@sagepub.com by February 17, 2023. Please put “JHHE Editor Application” in the email subject line.

<https://journals.sagepub.com/home/JHH>

 SAGE journals